Morrison Bites the Hands that Fed Him

Democracy is well and truly under threat with the Prime Minister Scott Morrison electing to disenfranchise the rank and file by scheming to fast-track unknown 'mates' as candidates into key NSW seats.

Greg Bondar, NSW State Director of FamilyVoice has been inundated with furious electors, and some politicians, who are indeed looking at legal action and a boycott of the federal campaign in NSW particularly.

"The PM has failed Christians on the Religious Discrimination bill and is now interfering with the democratic process of electing candidates by grass-roots supporters," said Greg Bondar.

The turmoil within the Liberal party is a god-send to opposition parties making any hope of winning back the seat from independent Zali Steggall a virtual impossibility.

"The May elections will be a boon for independents as the Coalition has lost touch with the people who were responsible for the 'miracle' election in 2019," added Greg Bondar.
