ScoMo needs to intervene

FamilyVoice Australia says Prime Minister Scott Morrison needs to intervene amid moves to expel a social conservative from the party so close to an election.

“What is the radical left of the Liberal Party of Victoria doing?”, asked FamilyVoice spokesman Peter Stevens.

“Four days out from a Federal election and they are considering expelling one of the best members of parliament in Victoria, Bernie Finn.

“Bernie Finn represents what is arguably the largest voting block in Australia.

“This is the social conservative vote. These quiet conservatives don’t often get stirred up but when they do watch out.

“These are people that are usually occupied with their family and/or their faith and of late have been very concerned about their freedoms.

“We call on the Prime Minister Scott Morrison to immediately try to restore sanity in the Victorian Liberal Party.

“These ideologically driven left-wing parliamentarians need to be brought into line and realise that there is a lot of the electorate that do not agree with them,” said Stevens.
