Coalition Election Commitment Needed To Save Women's Sports

Christian advocacy group FamilyVoice Australia is urging Prime Minister Scott Morrison to give an election commitment to defend the freedom of women to enjoy sports without biological males in the competition.

"The Prime Minister defends Warringah candidate Katherine Deves for seeking a fair go for female athletes, and he personally supports Senator Claire Chandler's bill to save women's sports, but Australian women need an election commitment to protect female sports," said FamilyVoice spokesman David d'Lima.

"Fairness in sports is a huge opportunity for the Prime Minister to assert common sense ahead of the election."
