Time to cancel the Mardi Gras

FamilyVoice Australia spokesman David d’Lima is urging civic authorities to withdraw their endorsement of the Sydney Mardi Gras and remove public funding from the parade.

“Politicians, police and especially the prime minister have no business attending and endorsing the Mardi Gras, and taxpayer funding for this blatant sexualised mockery of Christianity must cease,” David d’Lima said.

“Civic authorities must support the common good rather than commending the sexual misbehaviour of a tiny minority.

“The catch cry of sexual revolutionaries for governments to stay out of their bed sheets has become a demand for civic authorities and wider society to celebrate the queer agenda.

“Next will be the punishment of anyone failing to denounce the opponents of sexual hedonism.
